"If Brudder Socratos Shellbark ar' in de hall dis cavenin' ho will please step dis way," said Brother Gardner as the meeting was called to order after the rules laid down by the southeast corner to brag to Pickles Smith about the size of the carbuncle on his neck, and he slowly responded to the invitation, "Brudder Shellbark," said the president, "I ar' pained to observe a presistent dispo-sium on your part to tackle to big words in de English language. I wa in de rear end of Johnson's grocery Saturday night when you cum' into de front part and said you wanted half a peck of esculents, two pounds of saccharine solid, and a package of the dry extract of corn. Arter three hours' figgerin I cum to de conclusion dat you meant 'taters, ugar an' co'n starca."

"You ar' in de dally hubit of usin' sich words as 'perspicable,' 'mastigopherous,' 'legatary' and 'paleographist,' are you not?'
"Yes, sah." "H'mt Yes! You couldn't walk into a butcher shop an' ask for a soup bone in plain English, could you? You'd feel compelled to put it 'Sub hoc signo vinces,' I reckon."

''Zactly, sah."

"Y-e-s! Well, Brudder Shellbark, Presorry yur Jined to dis club. We ar' a plain, unpretenshus people. When we want to say one hoss wagin we down' spend three hours lookin' for the word barouche. I'm afeared you can't take comfort wita such people. You belong to some Shakespeare club, whar, when a chap wants a chaw of ying terbacker he turns on you and: 'Ego spem pretio non emo.' Did you wish to resign, Brudder Shell-"No, sal. I wish to stay rigit yere." "An' speak plain English?"

"Yes, sah."

"An' let all de big we an' sunk in de riber!" "Dat's curus, but we'll gin you a trial fur a month. If you cum dut experimentia docet stultos, all right, but if you supus pilum mutat, non mentem, and oblige us to omne solem forti patria, we shall certainly qui tacit consentit. You kin now set down."

Brother Shellbark ng med o his corner and sat down with a par which loosened thirteen yards of plaster, and when Pickles Smith asked him to hoe saxum posuit, he grew so faint that he had to brace his back to the wall.—Detroit Free Press. Miss Mary A. Rice, who has just been graduated from the department of pharmacy of the Kansas State university, is the first

BALLAD OF DREAMLAND.

I hid my heart in a nest of roses,
Out of the sun's rays hidden apart.
In a softer bed than the soft white snows is,
Under the roses I hid my heart.
Why should I sleep not? Why should it start
When never a leaf the rose tree stirred?
What made sleep flutter his wings and part?
Only the song of a secret bird.

Lie still, I said, for the wind's wing closes, And mild leaves muffle the keen sun's dart; Lie still, for the wind on the warm sea doses,

Does a thought in thee still as a thorn's wound smart? Does the fang still fret thee of hope deferred? What bids the lips of thy sleep dispart? Only the song of a secret bird.

The green land's name that a charm incloses It never was writ in the traveler's chart, And sweet on its trees as the fruit that grown is, It never was sold in the merchant's mart. The swallows of dreams through its dim field

And sleep's are the tunes in its tree tops heard

No hound's note wakens the wild wood hart. Only the song of a secret bird. In the world of dreams I have chosen my part, To sleep for a season and hear no word Of the true love's truth or the Hight love's art. Only the song of a secret bird.

burg on the Austrian Throne Rudolph of Hapsburg, born May 1, 1218, was the founder of the house of Hapsburg. For 500 years his descendants were emperors of Germany and one of them is now emperor of Austria. Rudolph was chosen emperor in a time of great lawlessness, not because he was a great lord, but because he was an up-right and brave man. It is related of him that once, when he was bunting in the mountain, he found a priest, who was carrying the sacrament to a dying person, stopped by a swollen abrook. Rudolph dismounted and made the priest ride his horse across the brook and to his destination. When the priest sent the horse back Rudolph would not take it, saying that the horse that had carried his Lord was too good for him to ride any

The Story of Horatius. The cities of Rome and Alba being at war t was agreed that the three Roman brothers Horatii, and the three Alban brothers, Curi atii, should decide the quarrel by a combat in sight of the two armies. Two of the Horatii were soon slain and the three Curiatii wounded. The last one of the Horatii pretended to fly and the three Curiatii fol saw that they were pursuing apart from each other he turned upon them and slew them one by one. Horatius marched back to Rome at the head of the army, and when hi sister, who was the betrothed of one of t Curiatii, saw the latter's cloak upon b brother's shoulder she wept at his der Horatius, in anger, drew his sword and stabbed her to the heart, saying: "So perish the Roman maiden who shall weep for her country's enemy!" For this he was condemned to death, but was afterward par-

The poem called "There Is No Death" was written by J. L. McCreary, of Washington, D. C., formerly of the editorial staff of The Dabuque Times. One E. Bulmer stole the poem outright and published it in The Farmers' Advocate, Chicago. In copying it some paper, naturally supposing the "m" to be a ypographical error, accredited it to Bulwer, and so it has gone around the world. The Harpers, at the request of the author, wrote to "Owen Meredith" concerning the authorship of the poem. He responded that it was not among his father's works, published or unpublished, and the Harpers promised to give credit to the author in any subsequent edition of their series of "Readers" in which it was originally accredited to Bulwer. A Filibustering Expedition. Gen. Lopez, with 400 men, sailed from New Orleans for Cuba on board the steamer Pam-pero, Aug. 2, 1851. The force consisted chiefly bans in its ranks, with several German and Hungarian officers. Among the latter was Com. Pengas, and of the horses of the Hun-garian revolution, and he was second in comided from 400 to 420. Indeed at Cabanas, at midnight, between the aised from 300 to and eighty men became separated from the main body and attempted to lonve the island in launches, but were exptured by a Spa morning of Aug. 14. Lopez was garroted the 1st of September following.

Jefferson, Ga., who still keeps at his trade, nithough 89 years old, is a veteran of three wars. He beat a drum in Jackson's army at the battle of New Orleans, fought in the Mexican war and served with credit through the war of the rebellion. Despite his advanced age he makes as good a shoe as any shoemaker in the state.

Dr. Morell Mackenzie takes a deep interest T. DAVIS. in musical matters, and is the director of the Lyric club of London. He never takes pay for professional services to singers. He has fonally asked vocalists of phenomonal voices or singers the formation of whose throats seemed to him unusual, to subject themselves to his examination as a personal favor, and thus he has become ac with almost all the great singers of Europe.
